Victim Impact Statement for Stephen Alan Wack (Jan 25, 1997)

On behalf of my family, I wanted to take this opportunity to share about our son and brother that we lost in the Humboldt Broncos bus crash last spring, on Friday, April 6, 2018. We will forever hold Stephen in the highest regard and hang onto the memories of what an amazing person he was. I think it's obvious to say that any of us three remaining members of our family would give anything to have Stephen back with us. We understand that's not a choice we can make.

To this day, I still remember the feeling of surprise and elation while I listened to my wife, Tricia, tell me that we were expecting our first baby back in the spring of 1996. It feels like it was yesterday, Tricia having just come from the Dr's office with this life changing news. With a new family member, many preparations quickly became our priority. Among them, was choosing a name. When we picked "STEPHEN" together, we agreed on the "PH" spelling version as we thought it would be less likely to be abbreviated. Little did we know that 15-16 years later, he would affectionately be nicknamed "WACKER" or "SWACK" by his various hockey teammates.

Stephen was born on a cold day, back on January 25, 1997 in St Albert, Alberta. He was a big guy from day one...so it wasn't entirely a surprise to watch him grow and develop into a striking 6'5", 220lb young man. He worked extremely hard on his health and fitness through his teen years. Most recently spending his junior hockey off seasons with other peers in the gym Monday to Friday from 8am to noon every day through each summer.

Stephen was an exceptional student through his school years. He was very intelligent. Year after year, Stephen finished with some of the top marks in his respective classes as he accumulated honor roll certificates and medals each year. Stephen was one of those fortunate people that had the intelligence that we knew would help him accomplish his dreams and goals as he moved through his life.

Stephen loved sports from a young age. He was one of those people that seemed to be naturally good at everything he decided to try. It was from a very early age that he developed a love for the sport of hockey. Once he learned how to skate when he was 4 years old, there was no turning back – Canada's game was his new favorite activity. He spent countless hours devoting himself to the sport. Many practices per week, many weekends away with the various teams, many bumps and bruises that come with the territory. He learned how hard work would often translate into positive results. He learned how to deal with the disappointment of not making certain teams. He learned dignity, respect, humility, and composure. Through all the ups and downs of playing high level hockey, Stephen matured into an amazing young man.

Stephen was an incredible big brother to his one sibling, Justin. He was approx. 2.5 years older so he quickly became somebody that his younger brother could learn from and look up to. When Stephen's brother, Justin, was born - our family quickly learned that Justin was totally blind, born without the sense of vision. This didn't slow these two siblings down. Justin's first laugh as a baby came from being amused by Stephen jumping on the bed that Justin was laying on. During a family vacation to California when Stephen was 3 years old, he was riding in the back seat of the vehicle. The silence was broken when, after what turned out to be some quiet contemplation, Stephen piped up and said "I would like to give Justin my eyes so he can see". To say their brotherly bond was beautiful would be an understatement.

As we moved through the aftermath of events from April 6, 2018 – the three of us in our family began to hear so many stories about our son from so many lives that he had touched. In his 21 short years he made a huge impact on so many. We will forever be proud of what an amazing person Stephen was. In summarizing what kind of guy left our earth on that fateful day last spring, I want to share some of Stephen's words towards life. This is an excerpt from a University application, written by Stephen, a few months prior to the crash:

"To put it simply, I am someone who loves the people close to me, loves life and enjoys working hard in all aspects of my life. I take pleasure in living a healthy lifestyle that includes playing competitive hockey, and I have been pursuing my passion for videography while running around various cities and places with a camera. I feel like I was 'raised right' by my parents, as they have instilled in me good manners, a strong sense of self, and they have given me a tremendous support system to lean on while growing up.

Something about myself that I am proud of is my ability to maintain a healthy balance in my life. I work hard while I am working, which allows me to enjoy myself when I take some time to unwind and relax. This puts my frame of mind into a happier state in which I can accomplish more and draw inspiration from daily life, which helps me to lead a life of positivity. You can usually find me with a smile on my face."

Stephen Alan Wack made our world a better place. He will forever be thought of each and every day by his many friends and family. We love you Stephen.
